

SRD Society for Responsible Design

Formed to combine the best ideas from practitioners, academics, students and members across all society to develop the huge capacity of positive design to help create our sustainable future. Australia's first group promoting best global design practice formed in 1989.

our objectives :

- To promote and disseminate information on responsible design • To foster a larger market for environmentally responsible products and services.
- To assist industry to accept and implement environmentally and socially responsible manufacturing and marketing practices • To establish an information resource & provide a forum for exchanging ideas.
- To promote evaluation of the environmental, social and economic impact of design • To liaise with and advise government agencies, professional associations, environmental groups, community groups and industry associations.
- To establish a skills bank to make available to the community and industry, the expertise of members for practical advice and professional assistance.

Your active support + sponsorship is required to make these goals happen. All who agree with our aims and objectives may apply for membership.
